SUICIDE BY HANGING

Albert Rose Ended Life at Home Near Rainsburg.

Residents of Rainsburg were startled Wednesday morning when word was circulated that Albert Rose, a farmer residing about a mile and a half from that town, had committed suicide by hanging himself in the hallway at his home.

Mr. Rose had not been well for some time and worry over his condition and other personal matters is attributed as the cause of the act. He had eaten breakfast with the family and about 10:30 o'clock a daughter, going into the hallway, found his body suspended from the balusters, life being extinct but the body still warm.

On May 8, 1905, a brother, Harvey Rose, and his wife were found dead in their home near Chaneysville.

Deceased was about 60 years of age and is survived by his wife, who was Miss Louise Shaffer, three sons and three daughters, namely: Katie, Witmer, Arthur and George Rose; Mrs. Ellen Welsh, and Mrs. Anna Leasure. He also leaves a sister and four brothers—Mrs. Franklin Wolf of near New Paris, George H. of Rainsburg, Daniel of Somerset County, and Randolph and Edward, residing in the west.

Three children survive him: Philip of Dupont, O.; David and Mrs. Rebecca Fogle, of Ottawa, Kan.; also a step-brother, William N. Smith of East Penn Street, this place.

Mr. Smith was engaged in the manufacture of chairs and fancy articles. His chairs are known far and wide. He was possessed of considerable mechanical ability and inventive genius. He was a student of philosophy and devoted much time to the making and drawing of devices to disprove the theory that the earth is round.

Methodist Episcopal

Christmas, as observed in the Methodist Church, was marked in its various services by a deep spiritual fervor. At 6:30 a. m. a prayer and praise service was held, at the close of which the congregation adjourned to the main entrance of the church and sang in the open air "Joy to the World, the Lord is Come!"

At 7 p. m. the Sabbath School Christmas service entitled, "Pearls of Praise," was rendered in its entirety. A short address was made by O. W. Smith, which was full of thought and the real Christmas spirit. A candy treat was given the younger classes of the school, while the main school gave a free-will cash offering for mercy and help work. Throughout the services the spirit of giving was more marked than that of receiving.

Presbyterian

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Edward F. Reimer, delivered an excellent sermon on "The Four Wise Men." At 7:30 p. m. the Bible School and congregation united in a special Christmas service written by the pastor and entitled "From Bedford to Bethlehem." The announcement aroused considerable interest and a large audience was present. It was a service in which the spirit of Christmas was told in story, in carol, in hymn, and in picture, illustrated with stereopticon, a number of views being made especially for this service.

St. Thomas' Catholic

At 6 o'clock Christmas morning High Mass was held in St. Thomas' Catholic Church, the service being solemn and impressive. During the morning mass was celebrated four times, Rev. Father Downes being assisted by Rev. Father S. J. McDonald of New Baltimore. As usual, the altar was prettily decorated and the music excellent.

The Frank Thompson property, corner Bedford and Pitt Streets, was sold at public sale yesterday to P. N. Risser for $4,200.

FIRE AT SAXTON

Skating Rink and Eichelberger Stables Destroyed.

Christmas morning about 3 o'clock fire was discovered in the roller skating rink at Saxton, owned by George and Howard Rinard, and by 5 o'clock the building and Eichelberger's stables were in ruins.

The fire originated in the smoking room and gained considerable headway before discovered. The nearest hydrant, at the stables of E. Eichelberger & Sons, across the alley, was frozen and no water could be secured. The flames soon reached the small building in which gasoline was kept and the explosion and subsequent spreading of the flames made resistance impossible.

The Eichelberger stables were consumed but the horses and most of the contents taken out. Several small buildings nearby were saved, but for a time it looked as if the Herald office, Mrs. M. Eichelberger's residence and the store of Eichelberger & Son were doomed.

The Rinard Brothers estimate their loss at about $7,500, with but $2,400 insurance. The rink was 40x130 feet, built about a year ago, and last fall $3,000 was expended on the building and equipment. The owners expected the holiday season to lessen their indebtedness and the loss is very discouraging.

Also a brother and two sisters: William Claar of Garrett, Mrs. J. Frank Bonner and Miss Lottie Claar, of Bedford.

Deceased was a kind and loving mother, and a good neighbor and friend. For 21 years she was a member of the Methodist Church. Rev. F. W. Biddle conducted the funeral services, which were held at the late home of deceased on Wednesday. Interment in the Bedford Cemetery.

EVENTS IN 1909

Record of the Year From January to December.

HISTORY DAY BY DAY.

Notable Happenings Throughout the World.

NAMES ON THE DEATH ROLL.

Discovery of the North Pole—Items of Miscellaneous Interest—Destruction
by Accidents, Shipwreck, Storm and Flood—Sporting Events.
A Chronological Review.

The record breaking year 1909, which saw the discovery of the north pole, was comparatively free from great disasters so far as the United States is concerned. Outside of the Cherry mine horror, the sinking of the steamship Republic and the usual fires and floods, nature dealt leniently with this country, but in the world at large added the earthquake in Persia, the flood at Monterey, Mexico, and some minor catastrophes to her book of death.

By far the greatest event of the last twelve months was the discovery of the north pole. On Sept. 1 Dr. Frederick A. Cook came out of the north and announced that he had reached the goal on April 21, 1908. Six days later Commander Robert E. Peary emerged with the news that he had made the discovery on April 6, 1909. Peary's papers were approved by the National Geographic society, but doubt was expressed as to Cook's claims. Several months before the coming of Peary and Cook Lieutenant Shackleton returned to tell of a dash to within 111 miles of the south pole.

Other important events of the year were the inauguration of President Taft, the departure of Theodore Roosevelt on a hunting trip in Africa, the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, the 13,000 mile tour of Mr. Taft over the country, the most romantic feature of which was the meeting with President Diaz on the borders of Mexico; the return to Hampton Roads of the sixteen American battleships after their cruise around the world and the decision of the United States circuit court dissolving the Standard Oil trust. In foreign lands the occurrences of chief historic interest were the deposing of Abdul Hamid II., the triumph of progressive government in Turkey and a new ruler in Belgium.

The year saw the flying age fairly ushered in, the notable aeronautic feats having been the crossing of the English channel, the triumphs of Count Zeppelin with his dirigible, in which he made various long flights and once carried twenty-seven passengers, and the flights of the Wright brothers, including the rounding of the statue of Liberty and Grant's tomb at New York and the high ascension of 1,600 feet in Germany.

As a memorial year 1909 eclipsed all others owing to the galaxy of great men born 100 years before. Centennaries widely observed included Lincoln, Darwin, Tennyson, Poe, Gladstone, Fitzgerald, Holmes, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Samuel Johnson (two hundredth) and John Calvin (four hundredth). The one hundredth anniversary of the death of Thomas Paine was also observed. In addition, several great celebrations were held, including the Hudson-Fulton in New York, the tercentenary of the discovery of Lake Champlain and the Portola festival at San Francisco.

The year's deaths were notable, including in the world of letters such names as Algernon Charles Swinburne, Edward Everett Hale, George Meredith, F. Marion Crawford and Richard Watson Gilder; in public life, Ethan Allen Hitchcock, David A. Armand, Governor John A. Johnson, Justice Peckham of the United States supreme court and Prince Ito of Japan; in army and navy circles, Admirals Rojestvensky and Cervera and Generals Henry C. Corbin and O. O. Howard, U. S. A.; in finance, Edward H. Harriman and Henry H. Rogers; in journalism, Theodore Barth and Colonel A. K. McClure; in the drama, Coquelin and Moljeska; in scientific research, Cesare Lombroso and Professor Simon Newcomb, and in the ranks of royalty Leopold II. of Belgium.

FACTS ABOUT MAGNETIC POLE

Magnetic Needle Does Not Always Point North.

It is quite superfluous to say that everyone in this country who knows anything at all knows that the North Pole has been discovered while but a comparative few know that the North Pole and the north magnetic pole are quite different places as well as different things. Most people suppose that the magnetic needle of a compass points due north while the truth is there are very few places on the surface of the earth where the needle really points due north.

The north magnetic pole, or area, lies in the vicinity of King Williams Land, just off the Arctic Coast of North America, in Bothia. These are strange lands that we don't hear much about after we have left our school geographies behind.

When this magnetic pole is between us and the North Pole the compass points due north. As we go either east or west from this line it is easy to see that the compass is "off" to a certain extent. If we were to travel north of the magnetic pole the needle would point south; west of it the needle would point east.

Sir James Ross in 1831 located the north magnetic pole, approximately, at a point up in Bothia, but in 1903 Capt. Roland Amundsen, in the good ship Gjoa set out on an expedition which lasted till 1906, and during those three years he re-located the magnetic pole and incidentally made the "Northwest Passage," the goal for which mariners have striven since the days of Hendrik Hudson.

Amundsen and his assistants lived for nearly two years at Gjoahav in King Williams Land, west of the Coast of Greenland. This was about 100 nautical miles from the magnetic pole and is a favorable point for making magnetic observations.

Terrestrial magnetic force is different on every part of the earth's surface and is not always the same at a given point. It is subject to regular daily and yearly changes, and Amundsen wanted to find out about these changes. Evidently the best place would be near the seat of the magnetic power, so there he posted himself, and for 19 months, day and night, his party took readings of their instruments—both inclination and declination.

Amundsen himself also made short excursions right into the very region of the magnetic pole and was able, by the aid of declination observations, to prove absolutely that the magnetic north pole does not have a stationary situation but is constantly moving.

A teacher at an evening school had before her a class in which were many very rough lads.

"Suppose," said the teacher, "I should say, 'Look out, boys; here comes the police!' Would that be correct?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow said, "No'm; that wouldn't be right."

"Well," inquired the teacher, "how should it be said?"

"Cheese it, cullies; here come a cop!" was the reply.—Tid-Bits.

A Policeman's Testimony

J. N. Paterson, night policeman of Nashua, Iowa, writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half a dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. No Man is Stronger
Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

The Great Fear of Hans Wagner
Hans Wagner, "the greatest baseball player in the world," forms the subject of an interesting sketch by Hugh S. Fullerton in the January American Magazine. ## BEYOND THE THRESHOLD

A New Year Musing of Man-Alive.

I have passed the door which opens to another year. The latch of the door was lifted for me by hands not my own. I could not stay in the old year any more, even if I tried. I loved its suns and snows, and even its storms and darkness were good for me. I do not mind now the sting of the pain-dart which struck me, nor am I ashamed of the resultant scar. And then, sometimes, there was the touch of gentle hands and the kinship of understanding hearts. These were my wine in weariness. All that is past—all save the memory of it and the effect of it; these abide—a part of the fibre of my latest self. But for this other year—the strange, new one—what? I ought not to ask. A veil is over its days, mercifully. I only know that I have essayed it; that it is but a little bit of the whole span of life, an annual unit in the sum of Time; and that in it lie my further adventure and opportunity. I shall go on. From their height the stars will see me, the earth will prove itself my friend all over again, and I shall meet my brothers in the way.—Richard Wightman in Success Magazine.

VI.—Pastures and Forage Crops.

Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture," "Making Money on the Farm," Etc.

THE cheapest gains on farm animals are made with green feed. Plans should be made to have a plentiful supply on hand at all times. There will be the clover meadows, of course, which will be used principally for hay. Occasionally there will be a luxuriant growth of fall feed on them which can be used for pasture to advantage. This second growth clover is especially valuable for milk cows, calves and hogs.

Permanent Pastures.

Pastures should be rotated where possible. Where a four year rotation is practiced one-fourth of the cultivated land will be in grass each year. This will generally be more than is needed for hay, in which case part of it can be used for pasture. In addition to this, there is usually some land on every farm that is too wet or too rough to be used for anything but permanent pasture. In too many cases these permanent pastures are weedy and unproductive. A flock of sheep or goats will do much to get rid of the weeds. If there are any thistles they should be cut while in bloom and a handful of salt put on the roots.

Where an area of land has been very severely overgrazed in the past it will be absolutely necessary that it be carefully pastured for the first two or three years. The native grasses and forage plants must have a chance to regain their former vigor and to go to seed. A very large number of stockmen advocate resting the land—that is, keeping all stock off for a period of three or four years. That this remedy will bring about the desired results has been definitely proved in numerous instances.

To increase the productivity it will be necessary to thicken the stand and loosen the soil. The yield of pastures can often be doubled by running a disk over them in the spring. This is especially true if a few pounds of grass seed to the acre are used at the same time. There is nothing better than alsike clover for the wet spots. Redtop is also good in such places, although it is not liked well enough by the stock to warrant its use where better grasses will grow.

Alsike clover (Trifolium hybridum) is a perennial clover whose appearance suggests a hybrid between red and white clovers, but it is not a hybrid. It will thrive on soil too wet for red clover, but on ordinary soil is probably not to be so highly recommended. It should be sown with grasses to give the best results.

The standard pasture grass throughout the corn belt is blue grass. For early spring and late fall pasturage nothing can equal it. It is nutritious, the stock like it well, it is not easily injured by tramping, and it is a good yielder. The chief objection to it is that it practically ceases growth during the hot, dry days of midsummer. At this time it is necessary to supplement the blue grass pasture with some forage crop or have a fresh pasture to turn the stock into. Many stockmen have several different pastures. They stock one heavily, so that it will be eaten down close in three or four weeks, then change the animals to a fresh one while the grass in the first gets another start. In this way greater value can be got out of a certain amount of pasture land. It is a good plan to allow part of the blue grass land to make a growth of six or eight inches before winter. This makes excellent winter pasture for both cattle and horses, and they will thrive and fatten on it. Horses will pay through several inches of snow to get to it. Although blue grass will thrive fairly well in dry and unsheltered locations, it will do better where shaded moderately. Pasture land partly covered with brush and short timber is a favorite place to secure a good stand.

Orchard grass is next to blue grass in importance as a pasture crop. It is hardly as nutritious nor is it liked as well by stock, but it makes a more rapid growth and continues to grow throughout the summer months. When sown in a mixture of other grasses, as it usually is, the stock are liable to eat the more palatable grasses first, leaving the orchard grass to grow up and become hard and woody. Where the plan of changing pastures is practiced there is little trouble from this source, as all the grass is eaten down quickly.

A good mixture to sow on old pasture before disking is eight pounds of blue grass, two pounds of orchard grass and two or three pounds of some kind of clover. Red clover is good, but does not last long. In most regions where blue grass flourishes white clover will work without seeding in a few years. A mixture of alsike and redtop scattered around the wet spots will complete the renovation of the pasture. From this time on a good disking every spring will keep the pasture in good condition. Any thin spots which appear can be reseeded at the same time. A few trees scattered here and there throughout the pasture protect the stock from heat and flies.

Summer Forage Crops.

With the best of pasture, however, some additional green feed is necessary, especially during the midsummer months. At that time of year, when flies and heat are worst, a slackening in the food supply means a loss in gain on young stock and in milk production from the cows. A well planned supply of forage crops at this time will give larger returns for the land used than almost anything else that can be grown. Forage crops can often be used to good advantage as catch crops where other crops have failed to grow or after something else has been harvested. Forage crops by keeping the land occupied with a rank growing crop help to keep weeds in control. They also enable more stock to be kept on the farm than would be the case otherwise.

One of the best forage crops is rape. It yields heavy crops of excellent feed. It is especially valuable for hogs and sheep. They make excellent gains on rape, particularly if a little grain is given in addition. Rape should be sown in the spring at the rate of about four pounds to the acre broadcasted or two and one-half pounds drilled. The seed bed should be well prepared. The greatest amount of feed per acre is obtained if the rape is cut and fed. A more economical way of handling it, as far as labor is concerned, is to have small movable pens or a pasture divided into small lots and change the stock frequently from one to the other. If left too long in one place they eat the rape down so closely that it is killed or the growth seriously checked.

Sweet corn is a valuable forage for all classes of stock. A variety which stools considerably should be selected, and the planting should be thick. If cut and fed fresh every day it is greatly relished. It is especially good for milk cows, often doubling the yield.

Sorghum and Kafir corn are also used considerably as forage crops, especially in the southern states. About fifty or sixty pounds of seed to the acre are used when sown broadcast or half as much when drilled. It can be sown with a grain drill by stopping up every other hole. The saccharine varieties make the best feed. If all the sorghum is not used as green feed it can be cut and shocked for winter use. It will have to be left in the field until needed for feeding, as it spoils when stacked.

A Good Forage Crop.

Indian corn makes good forage if sown thickly enough. The largest planter plates should be used, together with the fastest drill attachment, as thick planting makes small and tender stalks. Corn which has well developed ears is often used as a combined grain and forage crop for "hogging down." The hogs are turned into the field in the fall and left until ready for market. A few stalks turned in later will clean up all the corn which the fat hogs have missed. Lambs get a great deal of feed out of the cornfield in the fall, especially if rape has been sown at the last cultivation, and do little damage to the corn.

Excellent fall feed can be obtained by sowing rape or a mixture of rape and clover with the small grain in the spring. If there is moisture enough in the ground after the grain crop is removed a splendid crop of fall forage will be available in three or four weeks. Often the fall feed is worth more than the grain.

An excellent forage crop for pigs is Canada field peas. They should be sown in the spring at the rate of one-half bushel to the acre, together with two bushels of oats. If sown alone the rate of seeding should be two bushels to the acre. The hogs may be turned on when the peas are in the dough stage. In the southern parts of the United States cowpeas and soy beans may be used in the same way.

Millet yields heavily and makes a good quality of hay. It is also used occasionally as a green feed. Millet is a dangerous feed for horses, but may be fed to other classes of stock with safety.

Succulent Crops For Winter.

While not strictly forage crops, root crops, pumpkins and squashes answer the same purpose. Sugar beets, mangels and turnips yield heavily, but require considerable attention during the growing season. Carrots are especially good as a horse feed. Squashes yield as many tons of dry matter to the acre as roots, are just as good feed and are much more easily grown. Pumpkins can be grown in large quantities in the cornfields with little extra labor.

The Finest Food The Sea Produces

There's a world of difference in codfish. Some are coarse-fibred. Their meat is strong-tasting. They are not the kind you will like.

A few are fine-grained and choice. Their meat is sweet-flavored. The flesh of these fish is the finest food the sea produces.

These are the cod—and the only kind—which we use in making Beardsley's Shredded Codfish.

The Sweet-Flavored Fish

All the seas in the universe can supply but a limited quantity of the choice cod we demand.

So the price is naturally high. But we gladly pay it. For we want to give you a food you will relish.

Our cod are the product of Northern waters. The fish which feed here are the finest that come out of the deep.

And of these prime fish we select only the fattest and plumpest. Each fish is examined three times.

Then we take only the best part of each fish—the sweetest, most delicate meat.

SUBURBAN TOWNS

Of Pittsburg Seen by New Paris Correspondent.

New Paris, Pa., Dec. 22, 1909.

During my three weeks' stay in Pittsburg and on my way home I was kindly entertained at the homes of James A. Suter and wife, at Braddock; R. P. Wright and wife and Samuel Ralston and wife, at Wilmerding; H. H. Grazer and wife, Walter Rose and wife, Russell Wonders and wife, Harry Moore and wife, Ed. Knepper and wife and F. W. Cuppett and wife, at Johnstown, and S. M. Mickel and wife at Windber, all formerly of Bedford County, but Mrs. Ralston, Mr. Rose and Mr. Knepper.

I also met the following Bedford County people and had a friendly chat: J. Wy Boor at Pittsburg, Elmer A. Miller, Joe Hammers and Calvin Beagle, at Braddock; Mrs. Frank Hugo and James Ralston, at Wilmerding; Miss Virgie Grazer, Samuel Berkebile, Mrs. Lizzie Messersmith, Mrs. Ella Gilbert, Mrs. Harvey Blackburn, Mrs. Malden Mock, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hammers, William A. Stultz, Earl Wonder, Herbert Suter, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hammers, and A. D. Ling, at Johnstown; Mrs. Charlotte Mickel, Mrs. Ezekiel Felix and daughter Elvora at Windber.

That the readers of The Gazette may be informed how rapidly the suburban towns of "Smoky City" grow, I gathered the following information from Mr. Wright: In 1888 the town of Wilmerding consisted of two houses; in 1889 the ground was broken for the Westinghouse Air Brake Company's plant which covers ten acres of ground. The present population is 7,000. The tax duplicate for school and borough purposes is $59,116. There are two school buildings, one located on the north side of town at a cost of $32,000 and one on the south side at a cost of $53,000. They contain twenty rooms and accommodate 720 pupils. There are six churches—Greek Catholic, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Lutheran and Methodist Episcopal. The Y. M. C. A. building, which is said to be the finest in the United States, was erected at a cost of $200,000. There are eight hotels. The works employ 2,400 men; the general office of the works cost the company $125,000. All streets are paved with buff brick. The town has its own electric light and ice plants, a board of trade, free mail delivery, a paid fire company and a weekly newspaper.

The P. R. R. tracks are located through the town and upon them fifty-three passenger trains pass daily eastward and the same number westward, making it convenient to visit the city of Pittsburg, which is fourteen miles distant to the Union Depot. In addition to this railway service, there are three separate street car lines which give a ten minute service to and from the town. Nineteen years ago when Mr. Wright located in Wilmerding, he worked at his trade as a tinner and operated a small hardware store. At present he owns and operates a general hardware and builders' supply store which extends from State Street in front to Middle Avenue in the rear. His place of business has the advantage of both public thoroughfares.

To the traveler going westward over the P. R. R. after reaching Pittsburg, it appears to be one continuous town of public works as he passes through Wilmerding, Turtle Creek, East Pittsburg, Bessemer, Braddock, Copeland, Hawkins, Swissvale, Edgewood, Wilkinsburg, Homewood, East Liberty, Roup and Shadyside, to Pittsburg proper, with Brunsford, Bloomfield and Lawrenceville lying to the right and Rankin, Homestead, West Homestead, Glenwood, Hazletwood, Squirrel Hill, Oakland and Herron Hill lying to the left. After reaching the Union Depot the traveler is confronted with the smoke that originates from public works in Pittsburg proper, what was once Allegheny City and a dozen other small towns lying to the right of the Allegheny River, to the left of the Monongahela River and on both banks of the Ohio River.

A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION FOR PIMPLES

To remove Pimples, Blackheads, Blotches and all forms of skin eruptions, is, according to a well known physician, a very easy matter; he says that many are afflicted with some one of the above ailments, and are subject to a great deal of embarrassment on account of the unsightly appearance which they present, and recommends the following simple, harmless and inexpensive treatment. Go to your Druggist and get this prescription filled: Clearola one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces, mix, shake well and apply to the parts affected night and morning, allowing it to remain on the skin at least ten minutes, then wipe off the powder from the skin. Use a soft cloth or sponge in applying the mixture and in from ten days to two weeks your face will be smooth and clear as a marriage bell. ## The Most Wonderful Coal District on Earth

Now, these people were fighting for the most wonderful coal district in the world. All kinds of experts, private and Government, have looked it over; and the more it is examined the better it looks. Here are certain and definite things about it: It is the only first-class bituminous and anthracite coal on the Pacific Coast; from the Behring River districts railroads can be built to the sea, not more than one hundred and ten miles long, over perfectly level country; and, according to a published statement by Alfred H. Brooks, head of the Government's geological survey work in Alaska, there are six billion tons of it in both fields—more than one and a half times all the coal that has ever been taken out of Pennsylvania. Two-thirds of this has been filed upon by claimants—that is, as much coal as has so far come from the mines of Pennsylvania. Mr. Brooks estimates it to be worth a dollar a ton as it lies; that is, he estimates the coal in the two fields at six billion dollars.—John E. Lathrop and George Kibbe Turner in the January McClure's.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.

Sleep
When to soft sleep we give ourselves away,
And in a dream as in a fairy bark
Drift on and on through the enchanted dark
To purple gray daybreak—little thought we pay
To the sweet bitter world we know by day.
We are clean quilt of it, as in a lark
So high in heaven no human eye can mark
The thin swift pinion cleaving through the gray.

Till we awake, ill fate can do no ill,
The resting heart shall not take up again
The heavy load that yet must make it bleed;
For this brief space the loud world's voice is still,
No faintest echo of it brings us pain,
How will it be when we shall sleep, indeed?
—T. D. Aldrich.

IS IT A FARCE?

A careful examination of the papers filed in the office of the Prothonotary setting forth the receipts and expenditures of candidates and parv-treasurers at the recent election shows that a number have disregarded the law requiring the filing of such accounts. In a number of instances at former elections defeated candidates have failed to file their accounts, many of them believing that the only reason for filing the same was to be able to take the oath of office, but not to our knowledge has a Treasurer of a political party failed to do so before the present instance. The act carries with it a penalty of "not less than $50 or more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not less than one month or more than two years, either or both at the discretion of the court," for the violation of any of the provisions of the act.

This act was passed during the session of 1906 and Hon. William C. Miller, the present representative in the Senate from the Bedford-Fulton-Somerset district, was a member of the Senate at the time. A search through the papers after the expiration of the time for filing the accounts failed to reveal the account of William C. Miller as Treasurer of the Republican County Committee.

It may be possible the paper got into the wrong box, but this is not likely, for neither the Prothonotary nor his Deputy knew anything of it.

We are unable to find anything in the act which exempts all those concerned in its passing from its requirements and its penalties. Can it be violated with impunity by its makers? Is it a mere farce?

BOYHOOD TOWN

"Kind God, look down on Boyhood Town, and keep it green forever, The long main street, with shade trees sweet, the wharf, and the dreaming river.

Oh, lead us there when bowed with care to hear its childhood story, Its song and speech of love that teach the light of love and glory!

At! lead us down to Boyhood Town, when we are old and weary To taste and know the golden glow of spirits fresh and cheery.

Look down, we pray, on all that play in childhood's bloomy valley; Keep sweet the street where little feet of youth and gladness rally; Keep fair the place with pristine grace, that in our gray December We may be led with blithesome tread to love's undying ember.

Kind God, look down on Boyhood Town, and keep its soft lights gleaming,

In gardens fair that blossom there along loved paths of dreaming.

Look down, look down, on Boyhood Town, for we are fain to follow The homeward way some well-a-day, when all the world grows hallow.

Guard thou and keep its yards that sleep along the old main highway, Its lanes that wind where meadows end in bloom-o'-childhood by-way; With all its gleams, its joyful dreams keep it, dear God forever— Its shade trees sweet, that line the street, the wharf, and dreaming river."

The above was composed by R. F. Gibson of Decorah, Ia., who was born in Bedford 84 years ago. He attended the Old Home Week celebration in 1907.

Oratorio Well Rendered

For the past eight months Rev. R. H. Colburn, pastor of the Riddlesburg Charge, has had a company of young people under training for the rendition of the Oratorio "Zion," a difficult and highly erudite composition in music. This was given in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Hope-well Christmas evening to a highly appreciative audience.

The weather was unfavorable and kept many away who otherwise would have been present; notwithstanding however, it was a great success. The superior training of the company was manifest to all and reflected great credit upon all concerned. The verdict of those present was that it was a splendid performance. We would be glad to hear it repeated. Other churches would do well to favor their people with it.

Hopewell, December 29.

Now what is here?

A word of cheer

To herald in another year:

May all its days be free of blame—

A little nobler than your aim;

May all its labors be confessed

And may each year be found, when past,

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Redemption of Tramp Kelly.

A Lesson That Was Taught by His Brother in Misery.

By WILLIAM ALFRED COREY

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

Milwaukee Red had just rolled out of a box car, having arrived on a night freight from Seattle, and was thumping back doors for breakfast. With one foot very conspicuously bound up in rags, an arm in a sling and an expression of countenance to correspond, he had applied at several doors without success when at the door of a poor little shack in a side street a woman with a foreign accent bade him enter.

"Holy smoke!" thought Milwaukee Red. "Is me power house workin' right? A warm set down already! Dat's sure goin' some. Dat beats de cold handouts a mile. Now, jes' watch little Willie punish de grub!" And he hesitated not the fraction of a second; but, with a cheerful willingness born of a two days' fast, he followed the woman into the house.

But Red's bright vision of a table loaded with savory dishes only lasted until he got inside the door. The table was there all right, but in place of the smoking breakfast that Red's hungry imagination had conjured up there were only some fragments of loaves of black bread and a pitcher of water, while seated about the table were four half starved children.

The woman explained to Red that they were themselves nearly starving, that she was a widow and that a grown son, her sole support, had wandered off months since in search of employment, but that she never turned a hungry man away unfed at least with such as she had and ended by bidding him sit up to their frugal board.

But Red did not move. He stood in the middle of the floor and stared at though hypnotized. He stared at the partly eaten pieces of dry bread, at the pale faced woman and at the room in general, wherein want, was written everywhere. He stared for a full minute, and then, without a word, he turned and strode out of the room. And the woman noticed that he did not limp as he went out as he had done when he came in.

Outside, Red made for the nearest alley, divested himself of his "make up," stored the bandages in a bundle for future use and started uptown. An inspiration had come to Mr. Red of Milwaukee.

He had been in "risco" many times before, and he knew the ropes at a certain cheap eating place south of Market street. Once in a moment of weakness he had accepted a position in the place for a few days washing dishes.

Red went boldly into a meat market and said: "I'm after de meat for Johnnie's bash factory. Johnnie sent me. Dey wants ten pounds."

The butcher looked at Red. "Just some tramp dishwasber at Johnnie's," he thought to himself. "He acquires a new one every other day. I'll chance it's being all right."

Red barked with the meat, but not to Johnnie's. He next lay for a baker's wagon. Pretty soon one rattled past and stopped in front of a house. Red watched his chance, and as the driver ran around the house with two loaves of bread he helped himself to four nice, fresh warm ones from a box up on top.

Butter and milk were next on his shopping list, and these he stole from back doors where the articles had been left, it being yet early in the morning and Red being an artist in this kind of foraging.

A half hour later the kind hearted though poverty stricken woman who had offered Red a share of what she had was surprised to find on her back porch the food he had collected, together with the following crudely written note:

Dear Madam—Dese tings are for you. Don't say nothin' about it to nobody. Jes turn de kids loose on it. A FRIEND.

The next morning another and similar offering was found on the porch and eagerly appropriated, the poor family supposing it to be the work of some charitably disposed person, as in fact it was, though the tramp who had called at their door was farthest from their thoughts.

These early morning donations continued with scarcely an interruption for three weeks. Some mornings there would be articles of clothing for both children and adults as well as food. Of the latter there was a great variety—as great a variety, in fact, as the source from which it came.

"Wat yer rustlin' so hard for all de time, Red?" asked Kelly the Bum one night when they met in an alley where some empty barrels afforded free lodgings.

"Got a fambly to support," was Red's terse reply.

"A which?" exclaimed Kelly, scarcely crediting his ears.

"A fambly," repeated Red.

"You sure must be nutty," said Kelly, with alarm, as though in fear of bodily harm.

Then Red had to explain the situation. "I ain't goin' to see them kids go hungry," he said, "not as long as I can rustle."

"You'll git pinched an' sent over de road fust thing yer know," warned Kelly.

"Can't help it none," said Red. "Them kids is goin' to eat as long as I'm here."

"Where does yer fambly reside, Mr. Milwaukee Red?" inquired Kelly, with a mock obeisance.

"Out Russian Hill way," Red told him, ignoring the other's sarcastic manner.

"Russian Hill?" echoed Kelly, the cynicism in his voice changing to a note of interest.

"Yes, Russian Hill," repeated Red. "Wat's remarkable about those?"

"Nothin'," said Kelly, with forced effort to appear unconcerned. And then, after a moment during which neither spoke, he asked: "Where does them people live? Worked that section meself once."

Red told him the street and described the house, wondering the while, though not appearing to notice the strange effect the information seemed to produce upon his pal.

"An' yer been feedin' 'em fer a month," mused Kelly.

"Yes, an' I'll be feedin' 'em fer another month unless—unless her son comes back. Reckon he's bumin' somewhere same as you an' me. Didn't like to tell de old woman, though. Say, pal, if I had some kin folks o' me own to hustle fer I'd quit de road an' go to work."

Kelly did not answer at once. He seemed to have lost the power of speech and to be lost in thought though Red knew him too well to try to force his ragged friend to unobscure himself.

Finally Kelly pulled himself together and said: "Well, must be goin'. Got a hen on. No, don't need no help. See yer tomorrow." And then he added impressively: "Red, whatever yer do, don't git pinched. Hear me! Keep yer eye peeled an' don't git pinched. S' long."

"S' long, Kelly," said Red. "Look out yer don't git pinched yerself." There was no denying it was a grim risk Red was running, as was indicated by the following news item which appeared prominently the next day in a city paper:

SNEAK THIEVES INFESTING HILL DISTRICT.

Recently sneak thieves have been plying their trade in the Russian Hill district so industriously that there is an insistent call for more police protection. Articles of food and clothing have been disappearing so rapidly in that neighborhood of late that it would seem a small army of these gentry are at work there. Groceries left at back doors in the early morning hours are being taken, clotheslines are being defiled and small neighborhood stores even are being entered and robbed in broad daylight. The police are laying for these miscreants, and a good, healthy penitentiary term awaits all caught in the dragnet.

And besides the risk which he knew he was running Red felt the weight of the responsibility which he had voluntarily assumed. Looking out for himself was an easy matter. Long experience had made him a past master in the high art of living without working. But looking out for himself and supporting "a fambly" were two different propositions.

However, he had not long to carry the burden. One morning—it was a week since Kelly's sudden disappearance—Red was surprised to find the poor woman awaiting him on the oft visited back porch.

Their surprise was mutual, for the woman at once recognized in Red the tramp with whom she had offered to divide her crust several weeks previous.

"And is it really you who have been doing this?" she questioned, as though doubting her senses.

"I reckon 'tain't nobody else, mum," said Red.

"How can I thank or ever repay you?" she said, her lips trembling.

"Don't try to do neither one, mum," advised Red, longing for some avenue of escape. "How's yer gittin' erlong? How's the kids?"

"Oh, that is what I was waiting to see you or whoever brought the things about," said the woman. "We don't need help any more. My dear son Will—and tears of happiness shone in her eyes—"has returned, and he got work yesterday. He's going to take care of us now. He was gone so long, and we didn't know where he was. But he says he'll never leave us again. We're all so happy! It seems as though you have brought us good luck. I want you to come this evening and see my Will. He'll be so glad to see you."

Red looked past the woman and saw a coat which he easily recognized as Kelly's hanging upon a peg just within the kitchen door. And his pal's strange behavior on the night of their last conversation was at once explained.

"Don't see how I can come, mum," he said, "but tell Kelly—I mean Will—that I'm glad he's doin' so well and to stay with his new job."

And before the happy woman could detain him or press upon him more words of gratitude Red was out the gate and gone.

But one day they saw an item in a newspaper about a tramp being run over by an automobile and lying in a hospital with a broken leg. Something in the reporter's reference to the man led those whom Red had befriended to think it was he. Going to the hospital, true enough there was their old friend. As soon as he was able to be moved they took him home with them, and as they were now in a more prosperous condition they kept him till he had grown strong again. Then he insisted on going out to resume his tramps. They tried to persuade him to stay with them and get work, but he shook his head grimly and walked away.

THE TRUE TEST

Tried in Bedford, It Has Stood the Test.

The hardest test is the test of time,
 and Doan's Kidney Pills have stood it well in Bedford. Kidney sufferers can hardly ask for stronger proof
 than the following:

George C. Stiffer, 302 W. Pitt Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "The hardships I endured while serving in the Civil War disordered my kidneys.
 I often had to get up during the night to pass the kidney secretions
 and my back ached constantly.
 Rheumatism also bothered me and I was very anxious to get relief. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I procured a box at John R. Dull's Drug Store and commenced their use. It did not take them long to benefit me. Today I am in better health than I have been for years and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the entire credit for making this change."
 (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

Results Tell

Mr. Stiffer was interviewed on November 15, 1909, and he added to the above: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did two years ago. I still use this remedy occasionally when my kidneys are not doing their work properly and I never fail to get the desired
 benefit in a short time."

A girl bookkeeper displayed fingers black and unsightly with ink stains.

Now look," she said
 And, dipping her fingers in water,
 she rubbed the head of a match over them. The result was magical. The sulphur removed the stains as easily as a dust cloth removes dust.

"Isn't that a good idea?" she said.
 "A chemist taught it me. Thanks to it, I never have to go home with ink fingers."

Life

One must accept life as it is. It gives us great happiness if we are wise enough to see it, and it balances
 the scales by sending great sorrows, too. But that is life. If you would make the world brighter, try to forget your hurts, dry your eyes, and turn to help those who need the pressure of a friendly hand, the encouragement of a smiling look. Sorrow, and troubles of all kinds should teach
 one a great lesson—the lesson of universal kindness.—Home chat.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson I.—First Quarter, For
 Jan. 2, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. iii, 1-12.
 Memory Verses, 2, 3—Golden Text, Matt. iii, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We spent last week in a part of Matt. ii, and now we are to have a whole year in Matthew's gospel, with one or more lessons in every chapter but one. The consummation of the Bible story is the kingdom for which we pray "when we say, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as in heaven." A new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." Matthew is peculiarly the gospel of the kingdom.
 In chapters i and ii we have the genalogy and the birth of the King, the adoration of the men from the east,
 the sojourn in Egypt and the return to Nazareth and the massacre of the babes at Bethlehem for His sake, the first martyrs for Him. In Matt. i, 1,
 He is the son of David, the son of Abraham, and therefore in Him all the promises to Abraham and to David shall be fulfilled, all that was promised them concerning the land and the throne at Jerusalem. He will be first King of the Jews and then King of all nations, King of kings and Lord of lords, reigning in righteousness. Isaiah, who foretold so much about the kingdom (see ii, 4, 11, 17; ix, 6, 7; xi, 1-10; xxiv, 23; xxxii, 1, 17; xxxv, 1-10, et al.), foretold also of one who should prepare the way before Him (xl, 1-5).
 See also Mal. iii, 1. The same Gabriel who appeared to Daniel and told him of the kingdom told Zacharias that his son would go before the Messiah in the spirit and power of Elijah (Luke i, 17).
 This wonderful child of Zacharias and Elizabeth was in the deserts till
 the day of his showing unto Israel, and at the appointed time the word of God came unto him, and he went forth preaching the baptism of repentance
 for the remission of sins (Luke i, 80; iii, 2, 3). He was truly "the Lord's messenger with the Lord's message" (Eag. i, 13), and in Mal. iii, 1, the Lord calls him "My messenger." All that is required of a messenger is the faithful delivery of the message, the one sending the message being responsible for the results. What a comfort to such a messenger are such words as these: "I will be with thy mouth and teach thee what thou shalt say." "Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth" (Ex. iv, 12; Jer. i, 9).

The first word from Elijah is, "The Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand" (I Kings xvii, 1), and the angel said, "I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God" (Luke i, 19).
 John went forth with a similar consciousness, for he was filled with the Holy Spirit from his birth (Luke i, 15).
 How great is the need that men should repent, for God now commandeth all men everywhere to repent because the day of judgment and the Judge are appointed (Acts xvii, 30, 31). The woes that are coming on the earth and the woes of His wrath are to the end that men may repent (Rev. ix, 20, 21; xvi, 9, 11). The kingdom was preached as being at hand by John and Jesus and the twelve and then seventy, and it was at hand and would have been set up if Israel had received her King,
 but they would not have Him and determined to kill Him, and so He told them plainly before He was crucified
 that the kingdom would be postponed till His return (Luke xix, 11-13). The age of the mystery, or the time between His rejection and His return, is fast closing, the kingdom is again at hand, and it becomes us all who believe in Him to prepare the way of the Lord by preaching the gospel everywhere and calling upon men to repent.
 The things of this age should be as unattractive to us as they were to John,
 and food and raiment should be wholly secondary. If we seek first the kingdom these things are made sure to us (Matt. vi, 33), and all believers should be "fellow laborers unto the kingdom"
 (Col. iv, 11). As John magnified the Lord, told of His coming and kingdom and urged men to prepare for Him multitudes flocked to him and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins, but no man ever spake more plainly to professed followers than John did to these. He told them that if their repentance was real they must prove it by works of righteousness
 which all could see, for unless there was good fruit there would most surely be the burning. He told them that his baptism with water was to be followed by a baptism with the Holy Ghost and with fire from Him who would follow him and whose way he was preparing. He told them also of a harvest time when the husbandman would gather the wheat into His garner, but burn up the chaff with unquenched fire. All who hear the gospel and profess to believe it are either wheat or chaff, wheat or tares, and it will be for all either the kingdom or the everlasting fire (Matt. xxv, 34, 41, 46). While those words just referred to have a special application to a special judgment, there is a principle in them which applies to all believers and unbelievers. In Matt. xiii, 40-43, our Lord Himself speaks of the righteous who will shine forth as the sun in the kingdom and the tares which will be burned in the fire. It is awfully solemn to hear Him say that in that day
 He will have to say to some rare professors: "I never knew you. Depart from Me, ye that work iniquity" (Matt.
 vii, 21-23). May we be faithful witnesses, fruit bearing branches in the True Vine.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia,
 heart failure or apoplexy are often
 the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance
 the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys, and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it,
 and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.
 Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address,
 Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.
 When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—
 if you do you will be disappointed.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS FREE

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness, spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 321 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has a great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Tennyson's Critic

Here is a Tennyson anecdote which we recently found in a French literary paper, and which we believe will be new to a great many of our readers. The laureate, of course, was in the habit of receiving a large number of requests for his autograph. As a rule, he did not reply. But one day he was much impressed by the letter of the young daughter of a country gentleman, and he sent her not only his autograph, but an original quatrain.

"The girl was naturally delighted. Her father, however, did not allow her to thank the poet, but assumed that responsibility himself. He sent the following letter:

"Dear Sir: I have shown your verses to the schoolmaster. He finds that the tails of the g's and the upper part of the h's are very irregular, and that you also forgot to cross your t's. Aside from that, I thank you for your effort."—The Bookman

Embroidery Hints

When embroidering long eyelets, darn along the stamped line in the usual way, cut, and when working the eyelet hold a strand of the embroidery cotton along the cut edge in the same manner as buttonholes are worked over a silk cord. The amateur embroiderer will find that he completed eyelets will be much firmer if done in this way. When embroidering handkerchief linen or fine Persian lawn, embroidery rings often do more harm than they are of use, as they are apt to tear or draw the material out of shape, though the embroiderer is often at a loss how to do satisfactory work without them. This obstacle may be overcome by basting the material upon ordinary table cloth. This will hold the material as smooth and make the work as easy as if it were stretched over rings, without any harmful results. "Time and Money Saving Hints," in The Ladies' World for January.

Daily Thought

He who cherishes the spirit of kinship, heartedness and magnanimity, governed by Christian principles, cannot fail to become a worthy, useful and beloved member of society.—Collier

The Fatal Street Corner

In a Nova Scotia town lived an old man whose wife had recently died, leaving him in a comfortable house with no one to look after him. He soon began "lookin' round" for a second helpmate, and settled on a widow, whose status as a housekeeper for her former spouse was well-established. The old man had but one objection to her: she was a Methodist and he had been a devout Presbyterian all his life.

"It's all right but for that one thing," he confided to his crony, when they fell to discussing this drawback. "Come week-days, she will be fine, I'm a-thinking. She can keep me tidy, mind the house, and, man, ye know she can cook. But then," and he shook his head doubtfully—"then will come Sunday. We will be starting off to church together, just as husband and wife should be doing on the Sabbath day, and we will come to the corner. Then Mandy, she will be turning to go down the street to that Methodist place, and I will go on to the house of God alone!"—January Lippincott's.
